A year ago five or six columns of advertising by the business men in the local raper was considered a good showing. But as unusual and successful efforts were made by the Chase City Progress to increuse its circulation and haroaden its field, results were apparent that trade increased. This week the paper has forty-two columns and thirty-two of them are in paying advertisements. One firm takes a whole page.

Business men have to be oducated to the fact that sitting in their stores or slope, without the outside world being apprized of their stocks and prices, is a thing of the past, when it was considered a favor to sell patrons, but now the layers confer the favor by patronizing those was let them know what they have and where to find them, without the amonyance and delay of going from one place to another after arrival in town.

Some of the new settlers are agitating the practicability of establishing a cotton factory here if the local product increases.

A noiseless, patient spider.

I mark'd where on a little promontory it stood isolated,
Mark'd how to explore the vacant, vast surrounding.

It launched forth filament, filament, filament, out of itself,
Ever unreeling them, ever tirelessly speeding them.

And you, O my soul! where you stand,
Surrounded, detached, in measureless oceans of space.

Ceaselessly musing, venturing, throwing, seeking the spheres to connect them.

Till the bridge you need be formed, till the ductile anchor held.

Till the gossamer thread you fling, catch somewhere, O my soul! Inis series organ in The Times-Dispatch Sunday, Oct. II, 1903. One is published each day,
